

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Portable equipment for taking identification photographs, capable of being mounted on a wall or on the container used for carrying it, comprises a base, provided with a bracket for connection to a support frame and having a guide on which a sliding block can slide upwards and downwards, a motor unit fixed to the base for moving the sliding block on the guide, an upright fixed on the sliding block, a horizontally extending frame supported by the upright and in turn supporting sheet holders and corresponding vertical background sheets for a posing space, at least three digital video cameras aimed towards the posing space for simultaneously photographing the face of a subject from the front and in profile, and for recording the face in three instantaneous images in digital form.